GREENWICH, CT – June 30th, 2020 – BridgePoint Risk Management is proud to announce that eight of its colleagues have completed the Chartered Private Risk and Insurance Advisor (CPRIA) program. Nearly 600 professionals from some of the most leading insurance organizations in the U.S. have graduated since its inception in 2015. BridgePoint graduates include Kathy Sabanski, Jennifer Confalone, Tricia Gallagher, Chelsea Ankenbrandt, Angela Cotton, Kate Boisseau, Jocelyn Greco, and Elizabeth Staley. The CPRIA program is offered by the Private Risk Management Association (PRMA) and is endorsed by the Tobin Center for Executive Education of St. John's University in conjunction with St. John's School of Risk Management, Insurance and Actuarial Science.

"Earning a CPRIA Certificate is a great accomplishment, and we're thrilled that our team members are dedicated to continuously learning about this evolving industry so they can provide the best possible advice to their clients," said BridgePoint Risk Management CEO John Paolini.

The intensive, six-segment CPRIA program, which requires an 18-month commitment, is the first online certification course designed for insurance professionals who serve high net worth clients. CPRIA is unique in that it provides real-world scenarios, addresses current and complex industry trends and predicts needs of the future.

"This year's graduates have been wonderful collaborators who have studied with their peers and competitors and have worked to perfect the advice and solutions they provide their clients.," said Lisa Lindsay, executive director of PRMA. "We're honored that they chose to continue their professional development through PRMA," added Lindsay.

The program also aims to further the knowledge of participants by providing them with access to high net worth industry veterans and leading insurance executives.
